TEMPE CITY COUNCIL HAS BUSY SESSION

Cancass Vote of Bond Election and Find Bond Carried

The city council of Tempe met Monday evening in a special session and conducted business matters that demanded attention. The primary object of the meeting was to canvass the returns of the recent bond election and the work occupied a larger part of the evening.

The returns were found to check with the first count $6 in favor of the bond issue and 4 opposed. This matter was consequently put aside as finished and the council proceeded with the other business before them.

Curt W. Miller for several years town clerk for Tempe filed his biennial report containing a record of his office since May 1912. The same was found satisfactory by the city fathers and was accepted. The reports from this office are, under the statute, made only every two years and thus are rather lengthy when compiled.

The Goodwin Home Trust recently opened up by James C. Goodwin was submitted to the council and was approved. Mr. Goodwin can now proceed to subdivide his property and place the same upon the market. It requires the consent or approval of the council before such subdivisions can be made.

The regular monthly council meeting will be held on the second Thursday in this month and at that time the regular monthly bills will be received and audited as well as other matters taken up.

MESA YOUTH ATTEMPS REMARKABLE STATURE

Unexcelled Climate Has Aided in the Lengthening Process. Last Sixteen Years of Age is Now 6 Feet and 8 Inches Tall.

Garland McKay, employed at the R. N. Stapley bicycle shop, has the distinction of being the tallest man in town. He is only sixteen years of age and stands six feet and eight inches high. The salubrious climate of Arizona has not in the least detracted from the upward climb of young McKay. He came to Mesa last October from Mississippi and accepted a position with the R. N. Stapley company. At that time he was a scant six feet and a half. Since last October he has grown a full two inches. At the present rate of growth he will be seven feet tall at the age of seventeen. If he is like other lads and continues to add to his stature until he is twenty-one, he will then be eight feet and four inches tall. He is very active, enjoys the best of health, and is in no wise out of proportion or abnormal other than that he is just naturally tall.

McKay comes from a family of average sized people. His parents were only of average height. He had a grandfather on his mother's side who was above the average, but he was in no wise as tall as young McKay.
